RUN REOPRT 2304 the Orgasm Shocker explosion

Monday night started just like any other Monday night with hashers arriving in dribs and drabs. The trailer was open and Booger opened for business with the declaration that "I love my six pack so much that I protect it with a layer of fat." The mention of a six-pack prompted Toolsqueezer to state that "everyone has to believe in something so I believe that I will have another beer."

The runners set off one way and the walkers in the other direction but alas another walker's trail had been set and the first false trail was found. This prompted Azaria to say "doing nothing is hard as you never know when you are finished." Meanwhile as the walkers meandered along Cuttlefish recalled the time he "read about the evils of drinking – he said that he gave up reading because of that."

As the runners motored along Wart told Serenity that he misses Hercules because he believes that you should "fart when someone hugs you as it makes them feel really strong." Ewok thought about that for a while and then shared that business was bad at the moment and he was "so broke that he could not afford to fill up his bicycle." Serenity mentioned that he had money to fuel up his car but that recently a cop pulled him over and said "papers" and that before Serenity could get his licence out his wife yelled out Scissors I win and told Serenity to drive off.

Back at the start the trailer trash had more beer and lots of chatter. Hemroid began to tell everyone that he did not want to "brag but he did not even need alcohol to make bad decisions." Shatter quietly agreed and thought this was his chance to get one over Hemroid as he said "lets have a beer together, you can pay for it and open it and I will drink it." At this point a bold statement was made by Sherlock – he said "he did not have a drinking problem – he simply has a thirst problem."

Gash was heard to say that her" biggest fear about becoming a zombie is all the walking that she would have to do." El Dringo laughed at this and calmly stated that "he loved sarcasm because it is like punching someone in the face with words."

As the pack began to arrive back Slash was talking to Sniper about the trailer trash and mentioned that he thought that" lazy is such an ugly word and that he would prefer to call it selective participation." Suzie Wong didn't agree and told them that" she wasn't arguing she was just explaining why she was right."

The circle began and no-one except Some C was listening and this prompted Shocker to say that he "wished he was an octopus so he could slap eight people at a time." Charges were made (including one for Orgasm for her birthday – fancy 37 years old already). Sherlock shared a joke about how to keep his carbie in working order and this prompted Bentabeak to mention that "he tries not laugh at his own jokes but as we all know he is hilarious."

The monk arrived and promptly named two of the unwashed (sorry unnamed) in the crowd. Mark became Bangkok due to his hand habits and Angie shall forever more be known as Hot Box due to what she dispenses to her regulars. Bangkok said he would drink to that but Hot Box reminded him "not to drink to forget her as he will end up seeing her double."

After the circle Little Wetty was sharing all his secrets with Captain until he realised that he may have overshared but his secrets were safe as Captain quietly uttered that his secrets were safe with him as he wasn't even listening."

Wetspot reported that she overheard Mother Duck telling Hemroid that whenever I am sad you are there, whenever I have problems you are there, whenever I lose control you are there – lets face it Hemroid you are bad luck!"

As more drinks flowed and hashers quietly slid off into the night I got home to bed and thought to myself that "some people spend a fortune so they can circle the world but for me I drink enough beer and the world circles around me."

On On

Wetcheques

I caught my son chewing on electrical cords. So, I had to ground him. He's doing better currently, and now conducting himself properly.
