Run 2409

Once upon a time, at a lovely country chateau east of Charters Towers was held a great hashing meeting which will leave wonderful memories for many hashers. Sadly it comes to an end for this place. So let's celebrate for the last occasion and to open a new chapter. We packed the lunch and six packs or more, and travel all the way to great Kelso to TouchUp & Prickless place, hared by TouchUp & Cuttlefish.

Bush walking is one of key factors for this special location as we went through. The magnificent seven as a group of runners and trotters made an effort to make a rainbow in the bush, from dark blue, blue, green, yellow, orange, pink, and white. It doesn't mean support the other mob in the world as you all know that no poofa in hash. Trotters were following runners as no way to get short cut in the bush, but guess what, there was a rescue vehicle in the bush, flashing the light to get our attention. Alas they were bush hookers (true story!) as runners were held and chatted with them but failed to hook up. Also the magnificent seven walkers were challenging a long bush walk. Some of made the drink stop at CoyoteUgly's apparently and some didn't make it due to it being too dark to continue the trail and it was a very long way to get to home by then. Some never left the venue of course to look after the trailer and belongings.

The circle was held as usual and having usual charges. GM gave the erectus to Ballsy as a birthday gift for his birthday on Tuesday. Hemroid gave the POW and last week's left over tradie's belt to Wart. The tradie's belt was too small to fit on Hemroid, but perfectly fit Wart in addition POW's tool (the particular black stuff) did fit in a pocket and that was bonus! Raffles were won by ALL BLACK! It doesn't mean Kiwi won against Wallabies, actually no Kiwi members were here tonight, however, the black tickets were very lucky for a new factor. Of course other colours were in the bucket though just not the lucky one for the night.

Great venue, great trail, great circle, great domino (mmm...), and great time had by all.
