Run Report 2482 – Teaser & Know Knob – 7th Ave, Railway Estate

We left home in an optimistic mood with the weather radar showing that we would be on the edge of any light rain in the area. Well, weren't we nudged in the nuts. The light rain, while only of pestilence value, continued pretty much all the way through to the end of the run/trot/walk/t-trash.

Know Knob & Teaser had set a good trail but the heavens had interceded – Thank goodness for maps! Runners and trotters headed off for the Port Access Road bridge. It was fairly obvious that it was to be a FT – in fact it was probably one of the biggest in TVH3 history – all the way down to the “parkland” on the other side of the river. The two trotters thought, “Phuck this for a joke!” and only got to the top of the bridge and waited for the pack-o-six to return. Then it was along the bayline, through some parks and back to the big car park by the river for a piss stop where everybody had gathered. Then it was only a short, (but dampish), wander back to home along 7th Ave.

Those who had change of clothes did, while those who didn't commenced pseudo-re-hydration – definitely not needed, but then again this is Hash! After a few drinks and some snacky nosh it was time for the circle. Quill doesn't remember much about the circle but there were quite a few ice-blockheads – one of which was completely innocent. He was just helping out with the trailer by crushing his empties – the fact that it was directly behind “Her Royal Lowness” was purely fluke.

Mrs Quill just reminded of a couple of other “events”: Apparently co-hare, Knowledgeable Knob had forgotten that non-GMs are not allowed to wear hats in the circle and he was eventually awarded the Erectus. Benta-Beak also was rewarded for drinking Wart's only two TEDs while the run was on. (At least he didn't tell a joke – or do a dance!)

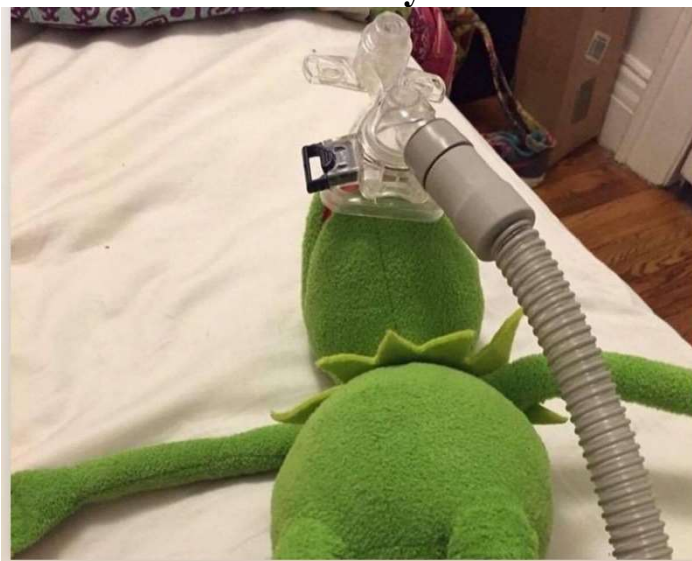

Nosh of curried snags was well accepted and the light rain (it wasn't drizzle – drizzle drops don't splash – see you can learn something every day!) didn't hassle us too much – the hares had supplied plenty of cover. Yep. It was a good effort from a couple of hares we haven't seen much of in recent times – Please come back.

This week we are off to ~~Invasion~~ (Bullshit) Australia Day Run at Dringo & Think Big's,

On on, Anon

Copit: After she put the fitted sheet on the bed by herself.

An elderly couple were in church. The wife turns to her husband and says, “I've just done a silent fart. What should I do?” Her husband says, “Put new batteries in your hearing aid!”

The cashier said to me, “Strip Down Facing Me.” By the time I realized he meant the debit card it was too late!

THINGS TO PONDER:

What if my dog only brings the ball back because he thinks I like throwing it?

If the poison expiration date is passed, does that mean it's less or more poisonous?

Do twins ever realize that one of them was unplanned?

Why is “W” pronounced “double U” instead of “double V”?

Every time you clean, you make something else dirty!

I didn't mind going to work, but the eight-hour wait to go home was just bullshit!
